Local artist makes a great big something out of nothing

Ruth Jepson saw potential in what others may have seen as an eyesore, but that is what an artist does.

Jepson spent eight long days atop a hydraulic lift painting this giant golfer on the water tower at the top of the hill at the golf course. "It seemed like it needed a bit of sprucing up," she said last week just after finally completing the huge task.

Just how huge was it? About 50 feet. In fact Jepson plans to get in touch with the Guinness World Book of Records to find out if her giant golfer compares to similar ones around the globe.

The tower, which used to be a bland grey, is now full of life and color, thanks to Jepson, the Town of Didsbury and Videotron.

Jepson proposed the idea of painting the tower to town council last year. However, because of the cost of revitalizing the structure in preparation, and the cost of the art work itself, council was unable to commission Jepson. But, when a corporate sponsor came into the picture, it was only a matter of months before the tower first turned blue, then began to show the first signs of life.

The idea is to paint sports characters on three or four sides of the tower, however it will be a progression as money allows.

Jepson thinks it is great that the tower is beautified in time for next year's 1999 Seniors Games that will be hosted locally.

1998 Commencement ceremonies a celestial event

By Nicole Smith

The graduating class of 1998 literally hung the moon and stars at their commencement ceremonies, held Saturday at the Memorial Complex.

The arena was beautifully decorated with candles, streamers and decorations to go along with the celestial theme the grads chose.

The evening began with a banquet held in the Multi-Purpose Room.

After a delicious roast beef dinner catered by Carol Wright, the Master and Mistress of Ceremonies, Russell Bisschop and January Meston introduced the many speakers of the evening.

Sue Williams, a teacher at DHS, made a toast to the grads from the teachers and gave them a top ten list of words of advice.

"Live your life as an exclamation, not an explanation," Williams said. "Learn to listen, opportunity knocks softly."

In response, Sean Milne, gave a hilarious run-down on many of the teachers at DHS. He also revealed himself to be the infamous library "stapler bandit," to the dismay of Denise Miller.

Elks get exemption

...and other town council notes

Airport appointment

Council had put out a call after their April meeting looking for anyone who wanted to serve on the Olds/Didsbury Airport Commission. At their last meeting, Bernie Kaupp indicated that he would like to be that person. The council felt that it was important to have someone who lives in Didsbury represent their interests. Kaupp's appointment was unanimously carried.

Audits accepted

The town accepted their year end audited statements as presented at their council meeting last Tuesday.

Borrowing by-law

Council passed a by-law that allows them to temporarily borrow from financial institutions in order to establish a line of credit until such time that taxes are collected.

Kudos

Michael Jonson was awarded a plaque from town council that congratulated him on receiving a score of 98% of the 1997 Recreational Facility Personnel Parks and Sportsfield Course, which was the highest course mark in the province.

In a letter to council from Rhonda Hunter, the Memorial Complex Manager, she stated, "Michael is a valued member of our team here at the Memorial Complex and offers us and our patrons impressive service."

Buying a bobcat

The town will buy a piece of bobcat equipment valued at over $20,000. The purchase was worked into the 1998 budget, and the engineering department has been searching for a good used piece ever since. The purchase will be made from Mark Flemming. The town will also purchase the backhoe and grapple fork attachment for an additional $9,000 which council approved last week.

Making a splash

The week of May 30 to June 7 was proclaimed as Water Safety Week by the town of Didsbury. The campaign is part of the Red Cross.

Handyman hired

Handyman Services of Didsbury has been contracted to handle the Main Street Project again this year. Handyman Services was the only bidder when the contract went to tender, and Dave Mohr, Main Street coordinator indicated to council that he was satisfied with the work and wished to continue the relationship.

Accounts transferred

The Main Street Project will now handle their own accounts, instead of dealing directly through town office.

Elks exempted

The Didsbury Elks will be totally exempted from taxation next year. Currently, the Elks are paying municipal taxes on the bar area of their building. However the Municipal Government Act states that if they hold a certain class of liquor license they may be exempt from all taxes. Because the bar was included in the equalized assessment sent to the province from the town, this year the Elks will be responsible for the school requisition portion of their tax bill, however next year they will be completely exempted and not be included in the towns overall equalized assessment sent to the province. The council unanimously voted in favor of the motion.

Assessment awarded

The Town of Didsbury council unanimously agreed to continue their contract with Red Deer Regional Assessment Agency to do taxation assessments within the town. The contract is worth $16,485.

Grant $ given

The town will use part of a grant given to them by the province to update assessment equipment, to give the contracted assessor (Red Deer Regional Assessment Agency) $1508 to update and enhance their equipment and software to better be able to handle the new tax and assessment laws handed down by the province.

Some councillors indicated that they did not believe that the money should be given to the company, however the motion was passed.

Water wishes

The Didsbury Lawn Bowling Association asked town council to lower their water bill as they must use fairly large amounts to keep their bowling greens in top shape. The Lawn Bowling Association felt that their water bill was getting out of control and would prefer a flat rate as opposed to metered rate. The town explained that when the the Association's demand for water usage was the highest, was also the time that demand through the whole area was the highest. It was felt by the Operational Services Committee, who heard the presentation from the Lawn Bowling Association that water conservation for everybody at this particular time of year is critical, and felt that the Association shouldn't have special privileges. Instead town council passed a motion that the lawn bowling property continue to pay for the actual water consumption, but that council approve an equal payment plan based on last year's consumption.

Reuse and Recycle

Padnoma Support Services has been granted permission to use the newly purchased stock trailer for the recycling depot. Wes Yeoman, town engineer explained that Padnoma provides the labor at the depot, however because the market for recyclable material is not paying well, the Padnoma group has been taking other odd jobs around town and they wish to use the stock trailer when they are doing those jobs. Council passed the motion, with the condition that Recycling Depot uses are of first priority.

New board members

Pauline Wigg and Loretta Copeman have been appointed to the Didsbury Environmental Advisory board.

Mayor's money

The town chose to donate $100 towards the Mayor's Prayer Breakfast which is to be held June 18 in the Elks Hall.

RCMP notes

Trikes taken

Sometime between April 15 and 30, 1998 a yard was entered just off the Burnt Timber Road. Culprits broke into a locked quanset and stole two Honda trikes as well as various tools. The trikes are a Honda Big Red and a Honda 250SX. If anybody has any information on this theft they are asked to call Didsbury RCMP or Crimestoppers.

Mailbox mishap

Didsbury RCMP report that a rural mailbox was damaged when a vehicle collided with it at the corner of SH 582 and 23rd St. There are a couple of Highway Traffic Act charges being laid including, driving without a licence. The driver of the vehicle was not released.

Valuable advice offered to grads

In her toast to the teachers, Jessica McNeil thanked the instructors for doing a great job with the class for the past four years and thanked Mark Leggette, the school principal, "for always looking good in his blue jeans."

In response, Iain Paton said, "we, as teachers, look forward to hearing about your accomplishments," and advised the group to "use your heads and stay off your tails."

Bill Chalmers, Assistant Superintendent of Chinook's Edge, advised the grads to "know you're good, wear it well, please share it with others and always smile."

Joel Windsor, a member of the Class of '98, performed a keyboard piece of his own composition and said, "this is our last year and probably our last time together for a long time."

The guest speakers slated for the banquet were two former teachers at DHS, Steve Thompson and Terry-Anne Robertson.

They both spoke of not attending their own graduations because of a large class size and the ceremonies being so impersonal. They said that this is the opposite at DHS, because the students all know each other and have been together for the past 12 years.

They then went on to give some hints on stepping into the future.

"Perseverance. If you think you can, you will. If you think you can't, you're right," said Thompson. "Enjoy every moment, no matter how stressful or how difficult."

"Don't fear change," said Robertson. "Change will set its own pace."

Thompson advised the students to never lower their standards and to never give in.

"You must learn to like yourself," Robertson said. "To enjoy the world around you, you must first enjoy the world in you."

Thompson asked the students to be spontaneous and adventurous and to not grow up too fast.

He also asked them to be volunteers.

"It takes a community to raise a child ... give back to your community by being coaches and referees."

After the banquet, the 68 grads made their procession into the packed arena. As the class opted not to wear the traditional caps and gowns, the procession was as much a fashion show of dresses and tuxes, as an entrance.

The Master and Mistress of Ceremonies for the convocation exercises were Shaun Ausenhus and Amanda Brown.

The valedictorian for the Class of 1998 was Jonathan Hooper, who had achieved the highest grade point average of all the students.

WALK THE WALK
The grads showed off their style during the Grand March.

He spoke to the group about change, working together and climbing the mountain of success. He asked the grads to "enjoy the view" when they made it to the top.

The Mistress of Ceremonies, Brown, entertained the audience with a lovely violin piece that she had chosen for the grads, because it reflected the emotions that they were feeling.

The guest speaker at the ceremonies was Eric Fredine, a former DHS graduate and successful businessman. He spoke of his experiences throughout his career.

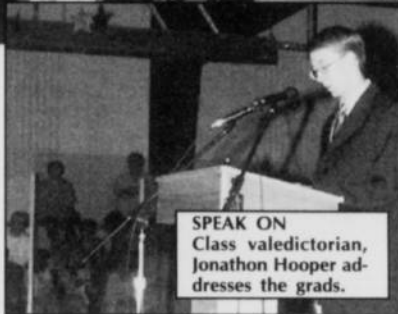

"You will face many different changes. Don't let them crush you," Fredine said. "You need to take risks, so that you can face other changes."

DHS principal, Leggette, addressed the group about their education, saying, "it's not what you get from it, diplomas and celebrations, it's what you learn from it."

He asked the group to "always act as if what you do makes a difference, because it does."

Leggette's speech was followed by the presentation of certificates. Denise Miller, another DHS teacher, spoke about each graduate as they received their certificate.

After the presentations, the

grads were escorted around the arena by their parents in the grand march.

The ceremonies ended with a tea for all the graduates and their family members.

PLAY US A SONG
Amanda Brown, a member of the Class of '98, entertains the hundreds of people in attendance at the ceremonies.

A SENTIMENTAL SPEECH
Terry-Anne Robertson, a guest speaker at the banquet and former DHS teacher.

SAVE THE LAST DANCE FOR ME
The grads enjoyed one final dance together before ending the celebration.

Local doctors to keep promise: "no more job action"

By Ceilidh McClurg

Local doctors will keep the promise they made when the last sparks flew between them and the province. They will not participate in the upcoming job action planned for all rural physicians.

Local doctor, Dr. Moe Ahmad is also president of the Local 31 said Friday, "I have suggested (to our members) that we hold back on job action and try diplomatic routes and discussion with the government."

Ahmad said he does agree with the Alberta Section of Rural Medicine (ASRM) and the doctors taking job action, that the compensation for on-call hours is far from adequate. However, he says for the time being he intends to hold true to his word, when he said during the last job action, that he would not participate in another one, and would look for other ways to get the government's attention.

ASRM sent out a press release indicating that about 90% of rural physicians would participate in the action.

Rural doctors from most rural communities stretching across Alberta from Beaverlodge in the north to Pincher Creek in the south, will close their office on June 8 to protest what they believe is unfair on-call payment. The ASRM says there will be further job action if negotiations with the Minister of Health do not resume.

After the province wide job action taken by the Alberta Medical Association, which the local doctors participated in, the province agreed to an on-call payment. However, Ahmad explains that the details were not worked out in the official agreement, and were left a separate issue. When the dollar figures came down, the ASRM figured that the payment corresponds to $6 or $7.35 per hour.

Ahmad agrees that a more appropriate amount would be $21 per hour of on-call time.

"It would be an incentive that might attract doctors to rural areas, and might improve rural medicine," he says, citing long hours and rural physician "burn-put" as a problem in getting doctors who will stay in a rural practice.

Ahmad admits that he thought the last job action by the doctors was sufficient to get the attention of the province and says it is unfortunate that the ASRM has to take further action.

Didsbury doctors won't take part, "Even if we fully support our colleagues," says Ahmad.

In the meantime, "Let's hope the diplomatic routes work and we won't have to take any more job actions," says Ahmad.

The only clinics in the region that will close their offices is Three Hills, and their emergency department will be open for patients.

Water ration request lifted

The need for residents to ration their use of water ended last week.

The Anthony Henday Water Treatment plant sent a letter to town office indicating that the limitations could be lifted due to a sufficient amount of precipitation to refill the reserves.

The water ration, that requested residents only water their lawns on certain days of the week, depending on their address, had been in effect for about three weeks, at the Water Commission's request.

Wes Yeoman, town engineer adds, "We did find that the consumption was reduced substantially and even though the water ration has been removed, we still encourage all residents to use water wisely."

If the weather provides another long dry spell, the ration could be reinstated. Watch this paper for details.

A guest column by Robert Magee

When it's no longer a game

Sport: 1. game, activity for pleasure, exercise; enjoyment 2. cheerful person.

That, according to Collins Dictionary is the correct English definition of the word sport. In today's society most athletes and participants understand why they are involved in sports. To have fun, exercise, to be with friends, to have a sense of belonging (on a team), to feel the 'electricity' or excitement when playing, and to win.

However, there seems to be a growing concern among people, that too much emphasis is placed on winning and not enough on having fun. And to a certain extent, they are right. I have seen coaches take all the fun out of the game to the point where it's a living nightmare and the athletes just don't want to go anymore.

Jack Donohue, a former coach of the Canadian men's national basketball team, and perhaps one of today's best motivational speakers, had this to say on the role of a coach:

"What's your job as a coach? It's a very, very simple job. You've got to help those young people to become all that they were created to be. Very few people attain this. The people that are playing sports have a chance because they have another person, another qualified person, interested in their future."

It's not just in coaching, but parenting as well. Teachers must lead by example and not get too caught up in the so-called 'politics' of sports. Really, when you stop and think about it, life is too serious as it is, so why take the fun out of the game? What positive aspect could possibly come out of that? Nothing. Zilch. Natta.

Those athletes that do make it to the professional level almost always have one or two coaches they can recall that played an integral part to their journey as an athlete.

Our job as adults isn't to develop a "win at all costs" attitude. Instead we have to be good role models, and display a fun, sportsmanship winning attitude. There's a world of difference. We must teach our athletes a fair play philosophy:

- respect the rules of the game
 - respect the officials
 - respect your opponents
 - maintain dignity under all circumstances
- As a coach, parent, athlete or fan always remember this through your life:

"What happens to you is nowhere near as important as how you react to what happens to you." (Jack Donohue)

Immigration has gone mad

By Myron Thompson

Yesterday my constituency office received a call from a very upset Wild Rose constituent. It appears they thought their daughter was marrying the love of her life, an American, in an August wedding. Apparently not.

When this gentleman tried to cross the border into Canada, he stated that he had been charged with a DUI when he was 18 years of age. The border guard would not allow him to enter Canada, and he had to return to his US home. Now while DUI is a serious offence and should be treated as such, it is hardly on the level of rape, murder or hijacking. This gentleman was told he must acquire a "permit" and may need a rehab package from the Canadian embassy in the US, however our embassies are only in operation from 1-4 p.m., during the week, and 1-2 p.m. on Wednesdays. Surely, everyone can appreciate the frustration this man and his young bride are feeling.

What is wrong with this picture? Canada is considering accepting as refugees, four suspected Iraqi spies, two Iranian defectors, including a hijacker, and two Syrian defectors, all currently held in an Israeli jail. I wonder if they will require a "permit" and a rehab package, or will we just open our borders and accept them graciously? Counsel for these criminals admits no other country is prepared to accept them, however our immigration officials seem to be chomping at the bit to process them.

It is a dereliction of duties by immigration officials and the Minister to allow criminals such as these into the country, and not allow a young man who made a terrible mistake at the age of 18, into our country.

The question here is: Who would you rather have?

Myron

Boarders need a place to play

Where to skateboard ... an ongoing issue in small and large communities, and Didsbury is one of those communities who is struggling with this issue. Skateboarders in Didsbury have been moved around to several places that have been deemed satisfactory, but none yet have proven to be the answer.

A church parking lot was the first location, west of the arena next, and lately skateboarders have gathered in the Agri-Sportsplex parking lot to test their skills and agility on their boards. What appear to be the problems arising in the skateboarding areas is ever-present noise created by the boards, the accompanying music (at times too loud), the garbage that is left behind by the skateboarders, the ramps that are not put away out of the way for cars access to the parking lots, and the fact that the skateboarders often board late into the night which disturbs area residents who are trying to sleep or enjoy a relaxing evening in their homes.

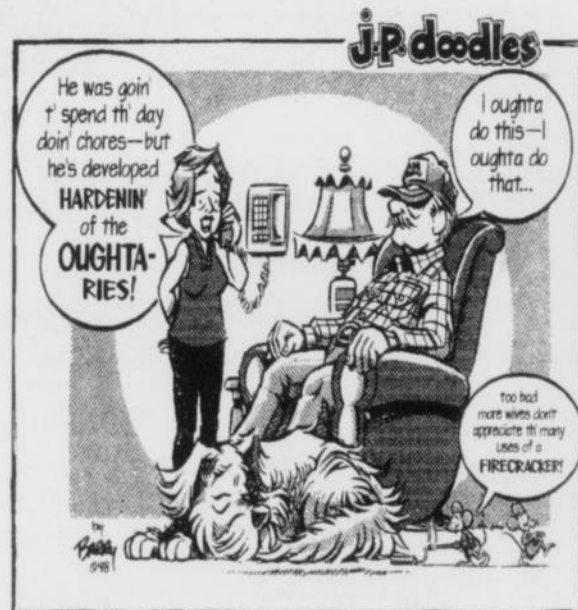

The solutions to these problems need to be solved. To do that, skateboarders, parents of skateboarders, residents of skateboarding areas, and Town administration need to put their heads together and find an area that would suit everyone involved in this issue.

When assessing the skateboarding issue, there are a variety of items to consider. First, the kids do need a place to skateboard. Second, skate-boarders and their parents need to be involved in helping to find a location and then need to be prepared to help with the planning and building of the skateboarding area. Third, the appropriate area for skateboarding needs to be away from residential areas, needs to be large enough to accommodate a reasonable number of skateboarders at any given time, and also needs to be accessible to Didsbury youth without them having to go out of town. There are other considerations that involved parties can add to the one mentioned and to share this information, a meeting is being planned.

Town administration is prepared to be part of the group who works to find the solution for a skateboarding location. There are some grants available for projects such as skateboarding areas and these grants can be applied for and received this year. A meeting has been set for Wed., June 3. All interested parties - skateboarders, parents of skateboarders, residents of skateboarding areas - are encouraged to attend this meeting that will focus on forming a working group who will tackle the job of finding a location for a new skateboarding area. The meeting will be at the Memorial Complex in the Multi-Purpose and will start at 7:30 and last only until 8:30 p.m.

If skateboarding is a concern to you in any form, please plan to attend.

Wonderings of the heart

By Margaret Fradley

There are times when a grain of sand finds its way into an oyster shell. The oyster is unable to remove it and it causes great irritation. It then begins to cover the foreign matter or grain of sand with many layers of a membranous secretion - it is no longer an irritant and produces a pearl.

Often we too experience times when grains of resentment, envy, bitterness, unforgiveness or other annoyances seep down into our hearts and cause great irritation.

We can learn from the oyster. We too can begin to weave layer upon layer of love around these irritations that can cause such a pain.

We too can discover not only that these feelings have no more power over us, but that we too have produced a 'gem' - we discover we can even come to love the one who caused our pain.

Gambling addiction stories have a local slant

Dear Editor,

My name is Joe, Tom, Susan, Anne, Mary, Peter, Joan, Pat, Shirley, and George. I come from all walks of life. I'm a doctor, lawyer, cook, housewife, nurse, dentist and secretary. I am also someone's mother, father, sister, brother, aunt, uncle, wife, husband and friend.

My name and occupation are not really important. My message is I'm a compulsive gambler.

Oh, I didn't come to know I was compulsive right away. It took a long time and a lot of heart break.

Whether I was playing the Stock Market, bingo, poker or the VLTs, pull tickets or any number of gambling combinations, I was only happy while engaging in any of these activities.

My home life was not very happy, so I gambled more to make up for it. Very soon I found myself with overdue bills, nil bank accounts, and maxed out credit cards. I re-mortgaged the house, the car and sold anything of value. I tried to borrow money from anyone I knew, but I still found myself at the bottom of a pit.

I had no control over gambling. To make a long story short, a concerned friend suggested a 12 step program. Thanks to this 12 step program I am alive and recovering.

Signed,

Any troubled gambler

Prime Minister outlines government's successes

By the Right Honourable Jean Chretien

It's springtime. And along with the usual rites of a Canadian spring - warm weather, and happier moods - this year finds us savouring an economy that is in full bloom.

In March, the unemployment rate hit its lowest level in almost eight years. Some 100,000 net new jobs were created in February and March - bringing to 466,000 the number that have been created since February of last year. Most of these jobs are full-time and almost all of them have been created in the private sector.

Especially heartening is the accelerating growth in manufacturing employment where the good high-paying jobs are. It grew by 30,000 jobs in both February and March, and has grown by 184,000 jobs since February 1997.

In March, inflation fell - for the third straight month - to below 1%. Statistics Canada has just reported that our inflation rate has been below 3% since 1991, and is expected to stay below 2% for at least another year. The only other time inflation has been that low for such a prolonged period was from 1959 to 1966.

Best of all, a recent report by the International Monetary Fund tells us that economic growth in Canada will not only remain strong throughout 1998, it will lead the G-7. Citing rising housing sales and construction, healthier retail sales and a higher rate of job creation, the report, World Economic Outlook, predicts that the Canadian economy should grow 3.2% this year. More importantly, it says that a forecast 2.3% growth in jobs in 1998 will be the highest rate of job creation in Canada since the start of the 1990s.

This great news is a richly deserved reward to the people of Canada for the courage they have shown and the sacrifices they have made over the past four-and-a-half years as our government has worked to restore vitality to the Canadian economy.

When we took office, we were faced with a crushing deficit of $42 billion - the largest in Canadian history - high inflation, high unemployment, and, everywhere, a mood of deep pessimism. Thanks to the support and sacrifice of Canadians, and less than one year into our second mandate, the deficit has been eliminated, interest rates are lower than those in the United States, inflation is low, unemployment - while still too high - is on a clear downward track, and there is a new optimism across the land.

In fact, many economists are now saying that Canada is on the verge of a new, twenty-year economic boom; a golden age comparable to that of the post-war period - a time of low inflation, lower unemployment, rapid job creation, strong economic growth, rising personal incomes, the development of sustainable social programmes, and boundless confidence in the future.

But even as we enjoy our blooming economic strength, we must remember that there are no guarantees. We cannot as a government - or a nation - rest on our laurels. We must not be complacent. The promise of a new golden age will become a reality for all of us only if we stay the course that has gotten us to where we are now. There is still plenty of hard work to do - on unemployment; on helping Canadians make the transition to the new, knowledge-based economy; and on reducing the public debt burden.

Our main goal as a government - with all of our creative energy - is to ensure that this springtime in the Canadian economy goes on and on. And that all Canadians have a chance to enjoy it.

Youth justice act too lenient

Dear Editor,

Recently federal Justice Minister Anne McLellan - in response to public concerns over youth crime - tabled proposals to replace the current Young Offenders Act with a new youth justice act. We at WatchDog Newsletter see good and bad points in the new strategy.

The good points are these: the age limit for serious, violent crime will be lowered from 16 to 14; the publication of the names of convicted young offenders who qualify for such serious crimes could be permitted; a tougher sentencing option for violent, repeat young offenders could be administered.

As well, however, there is much that is objectionable to what McLellan proposes:

- for the above much needed reforms, the word "could" appears too often. The revisions as they stand still permit soft-headed judges to allow, at their discretion, violent young criminals aged 16 and 17 to be tried as children, their names protected from media scrutiny, and their sentences limited to token punishment;

- young offenders convicted of so-called "non-violent" crimes will escape criminal prosecution. They will instead be subject to rehabilitative community-based measures such as youth counselling. But we feel that certain non-violent crimes like grand larceny, breaking and entering, and cocaine trafficking are still serious, and merit criminal prosecution.

We ask that interested readers write to Justice Minister McLellan. Readers can mail a (postage free) letter to her address: Room 707, C, House of Commons, Ottawa, Ontario, K1A 0A6.

Sincerely,
WatchDog Newsletter

New superintendent to start new job this summer

By Ceilidh McClurg

Chinook's Edge has ended months without a head superintendent last week when they appointed Herb Fader to the position.

Interviews were carried out throughout the fall and winter, and the consultant who was hired to carry out the superintendent search told the schools the official word on a couple of weeks ago.

A motion was made at a special executive meeting of the school board to accept the contract of Fader. It was carried with board chair, Linda Yargeau and trustee Becky Lewis opposed. Neither trustee wished to go on record with their reasons for opposition.

Fader is currently the Deputy Superintendent of Wetaskawin Regional Division, but will leave that job to come to Chinook's Edge this summer, according to the school board.

"It is anticipated that Mr. Fader will assume his new position this summer and he will spend some time in the system during the month of June," said a press release sent out last Monday.

Fader brings what the board calls, "a wealth of knowledge and experience," with his past positions as superintendent in Fort Nelson B.C. and the Northland School Division.

Fader has also held a number of supervisory positions in his years as an educator.

He has even taken his knowledge and leadership to the provincial level when he was seconded to Alberta Education from 1995 to 1997 where he was a consultant in the area of funding for students with severe learning disabilities.

Fader's educational resume shows a Bachelor of Science from the University of British Columbia and a Masters of Education from Western Washington University in Bellingham.

Local trustee, Deb Cousins, who voted in favor of the appointment said Friday, "I am very happy and supportive of the appointment. I feel he will bring a balance to Central Office because of his extensive experience. He's also a real team player."

Car seat crackdown

BUCKLE UP BABY

Lorraine Ortman buckles up her daughter, Madison, 3, properly after being shown the correct methods by a local Public Health Nurse and an RCMP officer. Ortman was one of the first people to bring her vehicle to the Car Seat Clinic.

By Ceilidh McClurg

When a family piles into their vehicle to head out on a trip, either to the store for a summer treat, or for a long road trip, they should be thinking about the worst case scenario.

It is a tough pill to swallow, but it is the point that the organizers of the Child Car Seat Clinic were trying to get across during their campaign last Tuesday.

The clinic was in support of a provincial Think Think Again program, explains Const. Charlene Lewis, who was the RCMP member in attendance.

Together with the Public Health Nursing unit at the Didsbury Hospital, they worked to show parents how to properly install and care for a child who is riding in a car seat.

Lewis says she acknowledges that sometimes parents are so busy just trying to get to their destination, that it is hard for them to remember all of the safety rules for car seats. However, she adds, it is the one time that a parent doesn't correctly restrain a child, that something horrible could happen.

During the clinic that was held in the parking lot of the Didsbury Hospital, Lewis reports that they dealt with 11 vehicles and 12 car seats.

Each time, the child was weighed to determine the appropriate child restraint, the vehicle was examined for proper installation, and the model of car seat was checked for recalled parts.

"There was a number of car seats that had recalls on them that people didn't know about," says Lewis.

The parents were made aware of the problem and asked to correct it.

Correct installation of the car seat is also paramount, according to Lewis. She says the most common mistakes are that the seats are not affixed tightly enough, and that the chest clip is not positioned properly.

The demonstrations were held around the local RCMP's jurisdiction, including Carstairs, Didsbury and Cremona.

The clinics were a first warning for parents in the county. Lewis reports that following the clinics, the local RCMP would be implementing a crackdown on car seat violations. Anyone who is found not to have their child or children properly restrained will be given the option of paying a fine or attending an educational seminar on the correct use of car seats.

Department tests new jaws

The Didsbury Volunteer Fire Department had the chance to bone up their skills, while being given a demonstration on a new set of Jaws of Life.

Left, Walter O'Dell gets some hands-on experience with a set of Jaws of Life that the Didsbury Volunteer Fire Department is looking to buy.

The Didsbury Department's equipment committee is currently looking into purchasing a new set that are lighter and easier to use. They have been inviting Jaws of Life dealers to come to town and show them all different types of the tool.

The committee will review the different units and come up with a recommendation.

Volunteer firefighter Mike O'Dell, says, "The department will hopefully be making a purchase in July."

Town sent out tax notices last week

By the Grade 4C class at Ross Ford Elementary

When residents open their tax bill, they may be surprised to find that the town council has lowered the commercial mill rate by two mills, and residential mill rate is the same as last year.

The tax notices which will show that fact in black and white, have been seen out from town office and should be arriving in your mailbox soon.

The assessment computers are working overtime to distribute about 1400 tax notices to the residents and business owners of the town.

"Most people will be happy this year," said Sandra King, town director of corporate services.

She explains however, that commercial business owners didn't get the break the town had hoped they would when they made the decision to lower the mill rate. Although the municipal mill rate went from 17.44 to 15.44, the school requisition portion which is collected by the town and sent back to the province for distribution went up by one mill. Resulting in only a one mill decrease in the overall tax bill.

"They will be happy, but not as happy as we would have liked to have made them," said King.

Reversely, although the municipal mill rate stayed the same for residential properties, the school requisition portion decreased. This resulted in a small decrease in the overall tax bill.

King said that if a person had a $2000 tax bill last year, they would see a decrease of about $10. The tax notices were being put into envelopes and prepared for residents last week.

But don't fret, you have until July 2 to pay the bill. King says the town will accept payment at town office or by mail.

Walk for wildlife through town

How far will a person go to make sure everyone in central Alberta knows that they can help break a Guinness World Record? To Didsbury and beyond.

About 140 km, walking on hot pavement, that's how far. On Sunday, June 7, the Medicine River Wildlife Rehabilitation Centre's Interpretive Coordinator Hugh Johnston will start walking along Highway 2. He's going to walk 20 km a day for seven days, from the north city limits of Calgary to Parkland Mall in Red Deer, a distance of about 140 km.

Johnston says he will be passing Didsbury on Hwy. 2 either Tuesday June 9 or Wednesday June 10. In fact, he says that he may even camp overnight in our local Rosebud Campground before continuing the next day of his journey.

Along the way, he plans to make a lot of noise about the Wildlife Centre's Toonie Tower, a fund-raising project that aims to set a new Guinness World Record for the world's most valuable column of coins (45,000 Toonies or $90,000).

Johnston will be followed by a motorhome, loaned to the Wildlife Centre for the week by Woody's RV World of Red Deer. Husky Oil Operations Ltd. has donated $150 to feed the motorhome. Innisfail Co-op and Save-On-Foods (Red Deer) have donated groceries to feed Johnston and his support team. RNR Footwear and Apparel is donating shoes for the Toonie Trek. Trans Alta (Red Deer) has kicked in $250 to help with promotional costs. The motorhome will be draped with banners, announcing the event and its sponsors.

"We're calling this the Toonie Trek. We'd love to get all of the 45,000 Toonies we're looking for and break the record this week, but we'll settle for as many as we can get," Johnston said.

Donations can be made to any Alberta Treasury Branch. People can also call 346-WILD, make a pledge, then mail their cheque to the Medicine River Wildlife Rehabilitation Centre, Box 115, Spruce View, AB, T0M 1V0. Anyone who makes a donation of $25 or more will qualify for a prize draw. The prizes will be donated by merchants in central Alberta.

"It's quite a challenge to keep this kind of thing in the public eye. I figured that we needed to do something a little unusual to get people's attention," said Johnston. "There are literally thousands of vehicles driving up and down Highway 2 every day, and the motorhome and I will be a moving billboard, advertising to the people in those cars and trucks."

There will be a reception at the Parkland Mall when the Toonie Trek pulls into Red Deer, June 13. Plans are to parade through the mall, make a few short speeches, then hand out cake to anyone who wants to donate a Toonie.

"We're calling it a cake walk," said Johnston.

More donations to cover promotional expenses would be welcome. Those interested can phone the Wildlife Centre at 346-WILD to find out what is needed.

continue to be a problem for residents year after year.

Property owners are required by bylaw 84-10 to remove dandelions from their property, including back alleys and boulevards. The Town of Didsbury will be enforcing this bylaw; any orders not complied with within the specified time will be dealt with by the town at a minimum charge of $50 to the owner.

Please respect your neighbor by mowing, spraying or digging your dandelions.

Horses for fun and therapy: Rehabilitative Riding

By David Lilly
Special to The Review

When we go horseback riding, we do it for fun, freedom and sport. When the Mount View Special Riding Association in Olds goes horseback riding, they also do it for fun, freedom, and sport, but most of all they do it for therapeutic purposes.

The Mount View Special Riding Association is a recognized charitable organization formed in 1983 by Austin and Betty Fisher. The purpose of the association is to provide a therapeutic and recreational riding program for children and adults with physical and mental disabilities.

"It was my wife, Betty's idea," said Austin Fisher. "We started out with four horses in a barn. We saw the confidence the children gained from riding the horses, so my wife and I looked into the possibility of forming an association. We went to Lethbridge and looked at their association and got more information and started from there."

Mount View Special Riding Association is a member of the Alberta Therapeutic Riding Association. Both associations are members of the Canadian Therapeutic Riding Association (CanTRA). CanTRA was formed in 1980 and has nearly 100 riding centres across Canada.

An article in Healthy Living magazine, Aug./Sept. 1997, titled "Back in the Saddle" by Ann Caine and Wendy Roberts, explains that Riding for the Disabled Associations' first surfaced in Europe following WWII. The article goes on to explain that rehabilitation centres offered war-injured soldiers the opportunity to ride horses, assisted by nurses and local women, as informally organized therapy.

According to the article in Healthy Living, this form of therapy is called hippotherapy, where the horse becomes a therapeutic apparatus. In this type of therapy the student doesn't actually learn to ride the horse, but rather sits passively on the horse and automatically reacts to the three dimensional swing motions of the horse's back.

The Mountain View Special Riding Association provides lessons Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7-9 p.m., from mid-April to the end of June in the Cow Palace in Olds. The students pay a $40 fee for ten weeks. Olds Agricultural Society donates the space for free. For each one hour lesson with five riders, 15 volunteers are needed. For insurance purposes, guardians or parents of the students must sign a waiver form before the students are allowed to take lessons.

"This year we have 20 students and two on the waiting list," said Shelene Williams, chief instructor for the Tuesday night lessons. "If we had more volunteers, we could enrol more students and provide lessons all year."

Volunteers should have some experience with horses, explains Williams. They help prepare the horses for riding and assist the rider in mounting, and ensure the rider has a safe ride. They do this by walking beside the horse, providing assistance, and ensuring the horse is under control at all times.

"It's fun," said Merle Manson, a volunteer for the past seven years. "I get lots of enjoyment from watching the students."

Therapeutic riding is recognized by many professionals: doctors, therapists and educators as a beneficial form of therapy. The disabled benefit in a number of ways.

Physical benefits include the movement of the horse, balance and coordination, increased circulation, better reflexes, reduced spasticity, and stronger muscles. Self confidence is just

Words from Westglen

This week the Wildcats of Westglen are working hard preparing for their end of the year exams. The Grade 6s just wrote the creative writing part of their Achievement test. Most classes are finishing their projects. Our class days are coming to a close but there is still much to do.

Mrs. Aggarwal and the intramural committee held their last competition last Thursday. It was a kite flying contest. It was great to see all the colourful kites in the sky. Thanks to the intramural group for organizing all these fun activities throughout the year. It really adds to our Westglen School spirit.

A special thanks to Mrs. Aggarwal for all her work. The intramural team was treated to a field trip to Calgary in appreciation for their work. Mrs. Aggarwal, Susan Tucker, Jennifer Loewen, Matt Urich, James McEwan, Robert Portingale, Jamie Tainish and Jacci Trenholm enjoyed some time at the University of Calgary and tried their skills at the climbing wall.

Speaking of Mrs. Aggarwal, she has been awarded the Edwin Parr Award. This is in recognition for being Alberta's best beginning teacher. The honour is well deserved. We are wonderfully proud to have you at Westglen. Mrs. Aggarwal went to the University of Alberta and majored in Physical Education. Her practice teaching was done in a Red Deer high school and then she came to Westglen. She now lives in Airdrie. Her favourite place is Italy and her hobbies are hiking, badminton and tennis. She loves to teach. Congratulations, Mrs. Aggarwal.

The WOW committee is planning a final trip. It is to Calaway Park on June 20 at 9 a.m. until about 5:30 p.m. The cost is $15 which includes the day pass and the bus trip. Students should pack a bag lunch. Sign-up will begin June 8 until June 15. Any questions or concerns phone Mrs. Israelson at Westglen. The final Westglen dance will be held on June 11, 7-11 p.m. The deadline for WOW committee nominations for 1998-99 will be June 15. See Mr. Green or Mrs. Israelson for more information.

Our final band concert will be June 10. Mrs. Visser's Grade 7 Drama students are presenting a production of Tessie the Tea Bag Maker for Westglen and Ross Ford audiences during the first week in June. The Grade 8 spectacle is Arabian Knight.

Many thanks to Constable Myles Peckham for the excellent DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) program he offered to our Grade 6s. He put many extra hours into the course work and into the graduation activities the students enjoyed so much. Thanks too to members of the Didsbury RCMP Detachment.

A wave from Winchester Wildcat to Mrs. Pothier and Mrs. McKetiak and their group of students Ashley Howard, Courtney Townrow, Nicole Adamchick and Brandy Bannister for their colourful plants and planters in front of our school.

Well done, green thumbs. So long until next time.

High standards for tomorrow's leaders

On May 14 at the Didsbury Lions' Campground, Melynda Adamchick, Alicia Hansen, Jennifer Lunt, Chantelle

Wilshusen and Chrystal Wilshusen were awarded the highest earnable achievement in guiding - the Canada Cord, which constitutes three years of outstanding accomplishment in the area of community, home, world and camping in the outdoors.

These young people have developed strong leadership skills and exemplify the high standards of tomorrow's leaders.

The Canada Cord has not been awarded to any Didsbury guider for nine years. The Didsbury Pathfinders are under the capable instruction of Mary Hatcher and Lynn Blair.

News from the Dragon's Den

Grade 12's tops in May Monarch campaign

Welcome to another edition of the Dragon's Den news.

The senior track meet was a huge success. Most participants from the senior team did so well that they will now be competing in the Zones tournament on June 3. Good luck to all competitors.

The Junior track meet was held in Cremona on May 27. Congratulations to all the participants who attended counties, especially since the meet went almost three hours over the expected time.

DHS coaches and teams would like to extend their gratitude to all the parents and teachers who volunteered their time to allow our sports teams to work so successfully.

On May 22, the social studies students were educated about the role of a Member of Parliament when Wild Rose MP Myron Thompson came to DHS. Thompson talked to Grade 10, 11 and 12 students about his work in the Reform Party, and answered any questions students had.

Classes appreciated his contribution to their knowledge on how a parliamentary democracy works. Thanks for the Canada pins.

Once again, due to the support of the community, our May Monarch campaign was a success.

The Grade 12s came first, Grade 9s second, Grade 10s third and last but not least the Grade 11s. The students raised over $6,000 for the school. DHS appreciates all the contributions to this event from the community. Much obliged.

Now that we are approaching the end of the year, we highly recommend that students start studying for final exams. Many teachers are holding tutorials for the students who would like the extra help.

Mrs. Becker is holding Chemistry 30 tutorials on Thursdays after school.

Mr. Lazzari is also holding Math 30 tutorials and Ms. Turner is holding an English 30/33 Prep tutorial on June 8, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. for any persons who would like individual assistance. For any additional information on tutorials please contact the school.

The Biology 20 class is attending a field trip to enhance their unit on adaptation and change. They will be visiting the Calgary Zoo for a day to learn about the behaviours of animals.

A reminder that the year-end band concert will be held on June 2. The concert will be held in the DHS gym at 7 p.m. Hope to see you all there.

Also a reminder to all the students applying for scholarships that many of the deadlines are this week and you need to be mailing the applications out.

June begins this week and that means only a few more weeks before summer holidays, which all the students are looking forward to, but it is also the time to bring closure to a year of learning and June is the month to study.

Have a great week.

Grandma's Perfect Day

Grandmother, on a winter's day, milked the cows and fed them hay.
Slopped the hogs and saddled the mule,
then got the children off to school.

Did a washing, mopped the floors,
washed the windows, and did some chores;
cooked a dish of home-dried fruit,
pressed her husband's Sunday suit.

Swept the parlor, made the bed,
baked a dozen loaves of bread.
Split some firewood, and then lugged in enough to fill the kitchen bin.

Cleaned the lamps and put in oil, stewed some apples she thought would spoil;
churned the butter, baked a cake,
then exclaimed, "For heaven's sake,

"The calves have got out of the pen."
—Went out and chased them in again.
Gathered the eggs and locked the stable, back to the house and set the table.

Cooked a supper that was delicious, and afterward washed up all the dishes.
Fed the cat and sprinkled the clothes, mended a basket full of hose.

Then opened the organ and began to play,
When you come to the end of a perfect day.

Cancer survivors needed for Terry's Team Member program

The Terry Fox Foundation is seeking Terry's Team Members for 1998. Terry's Team Members are cancer survivors whose cancer is in remission and who would like to share their experiences with others through school and public presentations. While all ages are welcome to participate, there is a particular need for youths under twenty years.

"Terry's Team Members are important reminders of Terry's determination and courage, and they show that cancer research is working to save lives," said Jennifer van Meenan, Provincial Director of the Alberta/Northwest Territories office of the Terry Fox Foundation. "Young cancer survivors are especially good Team Members because school children are often very affected by hearing about the disease from their peers."

The Terry's Team Members

program is a project of the Terry Fox Foundation, which is dedicated to raising both money for innovative cancer research and awareness of the disease and its victims. The Foundation coordinates the annual Terry Fox Run, which raises millions of dollars worldwide for cancer research. The 18th Annual Terry Fox Run will be held throughout Alberta and the Northwest Territories on Sept. 20.

Make a new friend today

Submitted by the Didsbury Public Health office

Human beings are, by nature, very sociable creatures. We enjoy each other's company. So, contact with family and friends is important on a regular basis, and not just when there's a problem.

An Alberta Health program called You're Amazing is reminding young parents - who may feel they don't have time for a social life - that it's healthy to maintain friendships and spend time with other people. The Didsbury Public Health office will carry this message.

Dinner parties might be out of the question. Who has the time or the money? But there are other options. For example:

-Make it a priority to stay in touch with your family.

-When there's no time to visit someone you care about, try picking up the phone or writing a note instead. (Some families are finding e-mail is great for spreading the family news.)

-Consciously develop connections with people you like and enjoy being with.

-If you're new in the community or are just looking to expand your social circle, get involved in an activity that allows you to meet new people.

You'll be welcome at a whole range of public events that take place in every community, large or small.

Check the brochures and newsletters in your local public library, the grocery store and the local newspapers.

Calling a friend is keeping you healthy.

For more information, call your local public health office at 335-7292.

A drop of oil: Way of life

In searching through an old devotional booklet the other day

I came across this little story that has a very modern application. "Bang! Slam! Everytime anyone went in or out of the front door, they had to shut it with such force that it disturbed the entire household. It made Grandma drop stitches in her knitting, awakened Junior from his nap, and gave Aunt Nellie a headache. Then Uncle Jim came to see us, and after hearing the door bang only twice he sprang to his feet saying, 'Fred, my boy, get your mother's oilcan.' He applied a drop of lubrication to the catch and worked the door back and forth a few times. What a change! No longer was it necessary to slam the door; it now closed with ease. 'Always try oil,' my uncle said, 'it makes things work smoothly."

People as well as locks and door hinges need oiling. A good way to preserve peace and quietness is to use the oil of kindness. How many times in our family relationships, or work situations, or even church relationships are things handled brusquely or forcibly?

As a result, the whole "household" is disturbed. How much better it would be to use the oilcan and drop in the "oil of kindness."

Many times we use a "sledge hammer" when we should be using the "oilcan." The next time you are faced with stubbornness in another member of your family, or are upset by the inconsiderate action of a fellow employee, or perhaps offended by some brother or sister in your church community, remember the "oil of kindness." With a warm heart, and a sympathetic and understanding spirit, try the lubrication of Christian love.

Put into practice the words of the great Apostle Paul when he said, "Be kindly affectionate one to another with brotherly love, in honour preferring one another." If we prefer one another in honour and love, we will eliminate a lot of carnal "friction."

So if things are not going smoothly today, why not try a "drop of oil."

Canada Day Sale

If you're searching for something specific or are just looking, the Canada Day Garage Sale is the place for you.

The sale is set to take place June 6, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Didsbury Curling Rink.

Gary Dolha is one of the organizers of the garage sale, which will raise funds for fireworks for the Canada Day celebration.

Dolha says that the committee could use some help starting Thursday night setting up the rink for the sale. He says that Thursday and Friday nights will be busy, trying to get everything ready. If you are able to help out, the group will be there from 7-9 p.m. each night.

Dolha says that they have already received "tonnes of stuff." He says that people have been saving things all year to donate to the Canada Day Committee for their sale. He says a man even drove down from east of Olds to drop off things from his farm.

Some of the items you will expect to find at the sale are: skis, ski boots, furniture, books, clothing, garden tools, drapes, camping gear, and computers.

There won't be price tags on any of the items. They are working on a 'make me an offer' basis.

All of the profits made at the sale will go towards the purchase of the fireworks.

Dolha says that the sale is a great thing because "everything gets a second chance to be used."

If you have any items to donate you can call Dolha at 335-9633 or Linda Lunt at 335-3806, and they will arrange for your donations to be picked up.

"There's been a small core of people that have donated a lot of hours and gasoline, picking stuff up for the sale," said Dolha.

Maritime Night

Have you been craving a feast of lobster lately? If you have been, then you should plan to attend the Dirty Mothers' 'Maritime Night' on June 19.

The dinner and cabaret is set to kick off at 6 p.m. The menu will be lobster, steak, potatoes and corn. They are also negotiating with a live band for entertainment at the event.

The Dirty Mothers are trying to raise money to attend the nationals in PEI at the end of July.

They qualified for the nationals last year, when they won the provincial championships.

The money that the team raises will go towards flights, accommodations and van rentals. They need to raise $14,000, which is the balance left over after each of the 13 players pitches in $500.

The tickets are $20 each and are available at Mountain View Sports or from any of the Dirty Mothers.

The Dirty Mothers

RCMP Golf Tournament

The Didsbury, Olds and Sundre detachments of the RCMP are busy preparing for their annual RCMP Golf Tournament. They are working with Victim Services to raise money for the Victim Services program.

The tournament will be held June 25 at the Carstairs Golf Course, because Didsbury doesn't have an 18 hole course.

The tournament is open to everyone, and their goal was to have 108 golfers signed up. They already have 152 golfers prepared to play, and some on a waiting list.

It's fun tournament and everyone gets a prize, which are being donated by community businesses. Some of the prizes include a new car from the Carstairs Ford dealership for a hole-in-one and a t-shirt from Air Canada.

The RCMP detachments and Victim Services are still looking for more prizes to be donated.

"The more prizes we get, the more money that goes back to Victim Services," said Sgt. Ron Platz of the Didsbury detachment.

There will also be an early bird draw on the RCMP/ Victim Services Raffle. Some of the prizes for the raffle include a champagne balloon ride for two, $250 AG Foods gift certificate and an Arnold Friberg RCMP print. The draw at the tournament will be for weekend for two to the Panther River.

A PRETTY CLASSY BUNCH

Gail Jensen's Grade 3 class at Ross Ford entered the Alberta Weekly Newspaper Association (AWNA) Write On contest. From a classified, they wrote a story about little boy's adventure with an alien, and illustrated the story. AWNA and the Didsbury Review, thought the entry was so fabulous, that they deserved recognition on this page. Congratulations Grade 3s on a job well done.

Boys and Girls Club

On June 9, there will be a representative from the Boys and Girls Club in Didsbury to speak about the program. Everyone is invited to attend a meeting at the St. Cyprian's Anglican Church at 7:30 p.m. to discuss the program and how to start up a local club. For more information call Michelle Hanna at 335-4446 or Wendy Bauer at 335-3763.

Summer Fun Program

Are the summer days long for your children? Do they get bored easily? Are they always looking for something to do?

Wendy Bauer and other parents within the community are trying to convince the Town of Didsbury to reinstate a summer fun program in mid-July for the children of Didsbury.

The program would run three days a week, for five hours each day. Some of the activities would be crafts, games and field trips.

"It's like a summer camp," said Bauer.

Bauer asks people interested to call the Town Office and tell them your name, phone number and how many kids and their ages that you have. The Town will be taking phone calls until June 9.

"If we get a good enough response, then we'll run the program," she said.

Bauer says they would hire students from within the community to help with the program.

Looking at the details of the Child Health Benefit

From the Office of Richard Marz, MLA

The Alberta Child Health Benefit is a new plan for children in low-income families. It is part of Alberta's role within the National Child Benefit, a nation-wide initiative designed to address child poverty.

The health plan is targeted to families with net incomes up to $20,921 a year. It offers coverage for children's dental, optical, drug prescription, and emergency ambulance services.

There are no premiums or fees to join the plan - families can be enrolled at no cost, though they still may pay a portion of some of their children's health services. The coverage ranges from 50 to 100%, depending on the health service and family income.

Dr. Lyle Oberg, Minister of Alberta Family and Social Services, emphasizes that "this benefit plan is designed for families who currently have no health coverage, specifically low-income working families."

By offering similar coverage to what a family on welfare would receive, the plan helps parents stay in the workforce and remain independent. It also helps families who are leaving welfare by stretching the health coverage they received through the welfare program. With the assurance that their children will continue to be covered for things like dental bills, glasses, and medical prescriptions, it is easier for parents to join the workforce and begin achieving financial independence.

The Alberta Child Health Benefit is only one of several strategies designed to support low-income Albertans. Other programs include the Alberta Family Employment Tax Credit, enhanced child care subsidies, and subsidy towards health care premiums.

Application forms for the Alberta Child Health Benefit will be mailed out to many low-income families by June.

Those who don't receive an application can get one by calling 427-6848 (toll free access outside Edmonton is available by first dialing 310-0000 and then dialing 427-6848).

FOODBANK REWARDED FROM RFP

Marion Hemming, of the Didsbury and District Foodbank accepts a cheque from Sandra King for $450. The money was the revenue from the Recreational Facility Personnel Conference that was held in town last month.

Upgrading leads to new opportunities!

The Academic Upgrading Program at Olds College gives students the edge they need to prepare for new career training at technical institutes, colleges and universities. Some students move right on to new careers!

Students learn at their own pace in small classes with plenty of one-on-one attention from instructors who care. Individual programs are custom-designed to meet student's needs, academic skills and career goals.

Courses include an introduction to computers, basic academic skills, high school courses and more — from reading, writing and arithmetic to life and employment skills such as problem solving, decision making, budgeting and resume writing.

This flexible program has also been scheduled to coincide with local schools to make it easier for students with child care needs.

"I was very nervous about returning to school after more than 20 years. But the instructors and staff at Olds gave me the support I needed to achieve my goals. I grew both mentally and socially."

Beetles are back

Those little black beetles that were feeding on canola last fall are back ... and they are hungry. With the mild winter we experienced last year and the less than average snowfall, it appears that many flea beetles have survived the winter.

Populations vary considerably from area to area, and producers are advised to check their fields for flea beetle activity while the plants are in the cotyledon stage. Once the true leaves have developed, risk of flea beetle damage is reduced unless very large populations of flea beetles are attacking the seedlings.

Canola fields planted without the benefit of a dual-purpose seed treatment containing lindane are at greater risk. Some early seeded canola fields may be sufficiently advanced to withstand damage, but late emerging fields are at the greatest risk. In some fields, damage to canola cotyledons has already exceeded the economic threshold of 25% leaf damage.

Canola planted with the benefit of a dual-purpose seed treatment will manage to limit flea beetle damage for about a week after emergence. However, we may start to see some damage as lindane levels in the plants begin to decline.

Canola fields planted with an in-furrow granular insecticide are expected to weather most infestations.

Canola fields will come under additional pressure as producers turn their attention to controlling flaxweed, shepherds purse, mustard and other cruciferous weeds in crops and on summerfallow fields. Beetles displaced from these fields will relocate to adjacent canola fields. Should the current warm weather continue, flea beetle damage to emerging canola seedlings could continue at an alarming rate in some fields.

PREPARATIONS UNDERWAY

Crews worked last week to prepare the railway track intersections for the new crossing arms that are due to be installed this month. The arms are being cost shared by the Town of Didsbury, The Federal Transportation Department, and Canadian Pacific Railways. The new gates are meant to add an element of safety to the current flashing light and whistle system.

James River retreat opens near Sundre

James River Retreat, a $7 million, 40-cottage leisure community northwest of Sundre, will officially open June 6 with a day of free public events. Beginning at 11 a.m., horse-drawn wagon rides and community and nature tours will be offered. Opening festivities also include a barbecue and ribbon-cutting ceremony with Tom Clark, reeve of the County of Clearwater.

The community is 14.9 kilometres north of Sundre on Highway 22 and 13 kilometres west on the James River Road (west of the Bible Camp).

Alex Dabisza, manager of the James River Retreat, estimates the project's civil improvements alone have injected $1.5 million directly into the Sundre and area economy. Local contractors were used to upgrade the community's access road, construct a $300,000 bridge and reclaim the site, parts of which had been logged by a previous owner. Once completed and occupied, he predicts the area's year-round leisure residents will contribute about $400,000 annually to the Sundre and area economy.

"We're seeing a growing demand for recreational property in the municipal district," said Keith McCrae, planning and development officer for the County of Clearwater. "Alex Dabisza had to go to great lengths to show the development would not have adverse effects on the James River, its floodplain or its water quality. He also had to address a number of concerns about fish and wildlife."

"We've worked very hard to exceed the standards and expectations of Alberta Environment and the County of Clearwater," said Dabisza. "For example, we built our bridge well above the 100-year floodplain level and made it much longer than we had to so we would maintain a wildlife corridor ... we've also restored the flow to several creeks that had been interrupted prior to our purchase of the property."

Dabisza expects more than a dozen of the 40 modern, fully serviced cottages at James River Retreat will be sold and constructed by fall. The site currently features a show home and spec home, open weekends and holidays from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Land Agents Licensing regulation review

The Department of Environmental Protection has initiated a major review of the Land Agents Licensing Regulation and the Land Agents Licensing Exemption Regulation and would like input. Feedback from the people affected by these regulations is very important to ensure that they are practical and serve their purpose. The regulations are of particular interest to landowners, land agents and industry.

"The Land Agents Licensing

Act and regulations apply to persons engaged full-time or part-time in negotiating for or acquiring interests in land," said Gerald Kress, Alberta Environmental Protection. "They also apply to persons who charge a fee to offer advice to an owner or his agent with respect to negotiations for or acquisitions of interests in land. Interests in land include interests acquired for right of ways and other surface uses that could be subject to a right of entry order under the Surface Rights Act or that could otherwise be expropriated. Typically this includes drilling and mining operations, laying of pipelines and the construction of power lines."

The Act and the regulations provide for the licensing of land agents, exemptions from the Act, controls with respect to the negotiation process, standards of conduct, powers of the Registrar, the establishment of an advisory committee, penalty assessment and a hearing and appeal process.

"A Discussion Paper has been prepared to help Albertans understand the regulations and the proposed changes," said Kress. "The Discussion Paper can also be made available upon request in an alternate print format, larger print or audio tape for Albertans who require an alternate form of communication."

Crop report for May 27

Most farmers have finished seeding and spraying is occurring in all areas of the province with the exception of crop district 3 (Claresholm - Cardston) due to rainfall in the past week. The spotty showers that fell at the end of last week flavoured the western half of the province while the eastern half of the province remains dry.

For the most part, in the western half of the province soil moisture conditions are in brackets for comparison purposes. Soil moisture is rated as very good by 13% (14), good by 27% (30), fair by 25% (29), poor by 24% (23), and very poor by 11% (4).

With 98% of the crop in the ground province-wide; seeding is essentially complete. Seeding is usually not complete across the province until the second week of June, so this year continues to be well ahead of the average.

Alberta Pool reporting staff estimate seeding progress by crops as follows:

Crop	% Seeded (1998)	% Seeded (10 year avg)
Hard Red Spring Wheat	99	81
Canada Prairie Spring Wheat	100	86
Soft White Spring Wheat	98	81
Durum Wheat	98	80
Oats	95	50
Barley	97	58
Flax	87	60
Canola	97	53

Alberta Pool staff continue to estimate good survival rates for fall crops at 88% for winter wheat and 93% for fall rye. The condition of the winter wheat is described as excellent, very good or good by 77% and fair or poor by 23% of facility staff. The condition of fall rye is described as good or very good by 56% and fair, poor or very poor by 44% of facility staff.

Dryness continues to be a concern in many areas particularly east central and northeastern Alberta as it was last week. Farmers (in all areas except southwestern Alberta) would welcome rainfall.

This is the final report for seeding progress. The next Alberta Pool Crop Report will survey general crop conditions and development.

Never too early to scout a field

The crops aren't even in the ground and field scouting is already being done. Early detection of problems is often key to a successful effect. Many aspects of growing crops are out of a producers control, so it's important to take advantage of situations where meaningful influence can be realized.

"Field scouting usually involves walking a field with a goal in mind," says Ron Hockridge, crop specialist with Alberta Agriculture, Food and Rural Development, Wetaskiwin.

"Knowing the problems a crop can encounter and having an idea of when to expect those problems to show-up, helps set field scouting goals. Control action can be taken once a problem is identified, but the first thing is knowing where to look for adverse factors."

In the spring, crop emergence is probably the biggest issue. Observing how even the stand is and doing plant counts gives an indication of whether or not there's an adequate stand. At the same time, checking for seedling diseases and insects can be done. Most importantly, look for germinating weeds. Weeds germinating near the time of crop emergence can cause more yield loss than any other factor.

"When it comes to weed control, one strategy is to establish a thick, healthy crop," said Hockridge. "The theory, borne out by research data, is that a rapidly growing crop suppresses weed growth through competition for water and nutrients. Research done at the Alberta Environmental Centre by Dr. John O'Donovan, concluded that the amount of yield reduction caused by a given weed population is reduced by 3% for each day that the weeds emerge after the crop. Dr. Neil Harker found that delaying weed removal until after the three-leaf stage of canola plants greatly reduced yields. However, weeds emerging after the canola had three pairs of leaves had very little effect on canola yields."

It's also good to look for nutrient deficiencies early in the growing season. Much of the production potential of cereal crops is determined by the time they are in the five-leaf stage. From that stage on potential can't be improved but it can be lost. If a deficiency is found during field scouting, the producer needs to determine what action to take. Mobile elements, nitrogen or sulphur, can be added and crop response is immediate. For some of the minor nutrients, it's better to wait for the proper stage and apply a foliar spray.

"Producers can't do much if an immobile nutrient, such as phosphorous, is in short supply. What is needed is warmer conditions to make more of the soil bound reserves available to the plant," said Hockridge. "The welfare of crops needs to be looked after through the whole growing season. Field scouting lets producers diagnosis a problem early and that can have a greater effect on yield."

Agri-brief

Farm Safety and the livestock industry

Alberta Agriculture, Food and Rural Development are producing a set of farm safety modules for the livestock industry. The modules outline the factors involved in farm safety and provide examples, guidelines and tips on making the job of raising livestock as safe as possible. Eventually modules will be produced for all types of livestock including hogs, sheep, goats, buffalo, elk, etc. The project is coordinated by Eric Jones of the Farm Safety Program, Wayne Goruk and Marcia Hewitt-Fisher both of Central Program Support. They are currently focusing on the cattle industry, dividing it into three main parts: Cow-Calf, Feedlot and Dairy. The Cow-Calf portion will be completed first.

Latest findings revealed

As a result of a bi-national workshop hosted in Calgary by the American Soil and Water Conservation Society, Canada and the United States will be promoting their latest findings at the greenhouse gas emissions conference in Bonn, Germany in early June.

Canada first advocated the new approach and has now been joined by the United States.

Agriculture is the new North American focus in helping to reduce emissions. Peggy Strankman, manager of environmental affairs at the Canadian Cattlemen's Association (CCA) says, "agriculture is in a unique situation, being both a source and a sink (storage) of greenhouse gases. Cattle producers can decrease greenhouse gas emissions from our sector by decreasing production inefficiencies and we can also provide lands as a sink for carbon."

It's known trees are important in storing carbon but it's now known grasslands are even more effective.

"Researchers estimate carbon storage potential of new grasslands to be about 8 metric tons per acre per year. This is about twice what woodlands are estimated to store. Restoring saline or eroded lands could store up to half a ton of carbon per acre," said Strankman.

Carbon sink capabilities of agricultural soils is not currently recognized in the international negotiations involving greenhouse gases. Strankman says the goal is to convince other countries they should recognize the new findings adding, "we're working on firming up the science through good research."

World-wide recognition that the soil has major carbon storage capabilities will be valuable to other industries that will be asked to decrease their emissions in some way, adds Strankman.

Ready for rodeo

The entries are now closed for the 38th Annual Wrangler Classic, Coors Chute Out Professional Rodeo at Innisfail, AB. The rodeo is at the Daines Ranch from June 11-14. Well over 600 rodeo contestants will be competing for an excess of $130,000 with rodeo purse and entry fee added together. This is the largest payout ever for this rodeo compared with $104,000 last year. The best rodeo stock in the nation will buck at this rodeo from the top eight rodeo stock contractors in Canada: Wayne Vold Rodeo Stock Ltd., Calgary Stampede Stock, Harvey Northcott Rodeo, Verne Franklin Rodeo, Peters & Sons Rodeo Co., BigStone Rodeo Company, Duane Kesler Rodeo and Kelser Championship Rodeo.

The contestant entry list includes all of our Canadian champions and all the Canadian Finals champions. World Champions like the great six time World Champion Ty Murray from Stephenville, Texas. Murray is in the lead to winning his seventh world title. Also, current World Champion, All Around Champion and Saddle Bronc Champion Dan Mortenson will be there.

Special guests include Miss Rodeo Canada, Brook Robertson and Miss Rodeo America Mary Shaw from Ogden, Utah.

WHAT A PERFORMANCE!

In the spirit of the Didsbury High School Lip Sync Contest, a few of the teachers at DHS donned their Village People costumes and performed "YMCA" for the crowd. Aretha Franklin's "Respect" was performed by the Student Council and Elvis was even in attendance.

five rodeo performances. Call 277-3166 or you can pick them up at the Innisfail Auction Market. Because of the number of entries, there will be a lot of contestant overflow so come early.

Heggie's season a winner

At the Taber Pro Rodeo, Robert Heggie proved once again that he is a force to be reckoned with. The five-time steer wrestling champion came through and won the rodeo in a time of 4.5 to win $1,183.

"I just had to make sure I got a really good start; I wasn't going to be late because a lot of guys were late and not catching up," said the 39-year-old Raymond, AB native.

"So I got a really good start, and everything just fell into place."

The closest time was a 5.2 run by John Gibson of Hardisty, AB to earn $1,029.

Heggie's Taber win has put him into the top 20 in the Canadian standings, placing him ahead of cousins, Todd and Jeff.

The Heggie family is a large part of the rodeo circuit, with members competing in both the pros and the amateur circuits.

The family rivalries are more a help than a hindrance though, says Robert.

"We support one another; there's always competition, but you push one another to try to excel."

Robert and his cousin Todd travel together, along with Robert's horses, including Hulk, Robert's long-time bulldogging horse. Jeff's travelling partner is Todd Woodward, but when they're set up together, they all use Robert's horses.

Everything seems to be falling into place pretty well for Robert this season.

It started when he went down to the US for some winter rodeos, and came home with about $6,500. It was his first time competing in Texas, and his first time at the big rodeo in Houston.

"Denver qualified me for Houston, so that was a reason to keep going down there. You get a chance to go to Houston, you don't pass that up."

The Taber Rodeo also proved profitable for rookie sensation Jace Harty. The 18-year-old shared a win in the bull riding with Kirk Giraudier from Bengough, SK.

The cowboys each won $805, which means Harty might qualify to compete at the Calgary Stampede this year.

Dan Mortensen topped the saddle bronc with an 89-point ride on Kesler Rodeo's Collect Call to add $1,105 to his season's earnings.

Another big winner was Larry Robinson from Innisfail with a 7.9 in calf roping to earn a $1,209 first. Robinson is currently in seventh place in the standings.

At the Big Stone Rodeo, Glen O'Neill showed once again that he is unstoppable in the saddle bronc with an 84-point ride on Big Stone Rodeo's Sundown Copenhagen. The first place finish gave O'Neill another $862 to keep him coasting in first place in the Canadian standings.

Jacqueline Stojan earned a first place finish and $685 with her 17.39 time. The 18-year-old barrel racer was a double earner over the weekend with an 8th place finish in Taber and $76 to add to her winnings.

Marty Becker won the calf roping with a time of 7.7 and $995 worth of earnings.

Travis Houff managed second place finished in both Taber and Big Stone last weekend. An 8.2 time at both rodeos earned Houff a total of $1,823.

Greg Cassidy came up first in the steer wrestling with a time of 4.2 to earn $1,208. The Donald, AB native seems to be consistently moving up in the standings with a sixth place finish last week and season's earnings of $5,469.

Cassidy hopes to make the Canadian Finals this year and compete along side of his son, Curtis, last season's CPRA Rookie of the Year.

The three-time Canadian steer wrestling champion missed his chance last year, falling short in both the calf roping and wrestling.

Girls get their kicks from soccer

Soccer has become the number one sport in Canada at the grassroots level and a big reason for soccer's dominance is its growth in female participation. Since 1980, the number of female registrants increased from 5% of the total registered soccer players to nearly 35%. The Canadian Soccer Association, which has established gender equity as one of its goals, has launched the Sunny Delight Soccer Skills Program dedicated to developing the talents of both boys and girls in Canada.

"The unmatched popularity of soccer worldwide is rubbing off on Canada and it's great to see so much interest from girls," said Kevan Pipe, COO of the Canadian Soccer Association.

"Soccer is a game that all kids, regardless of gender, size and shape, can enjoy and afford to play. We're really proud that in teaching these skills, kids will be better able to play and enjoy the game."

The Soccer Skills Program will reach between 80,000 to 100,000 boys and girls across Canada this year and will run the length of the soccer season, from June through August. The program will offer six different soccer skill challenges for kids aged 6 to 16.

"I know skills training was essential for me in my development as a soccer player," said Helen Stoumbo, player for the Canadian national women's soccer team, who demonstrated the program to eager members of the North Toronto Youth Soccer Club at Varsity Stadium.

"If we want to produce male and female players who can compete on the international stage, we need to ensure our kids are being challenged on the basic skills from an early age."

Arjon Molio, Marketing Director, Food and Beverage Products, for Procter and Gamble says, "Like the Canadian Soccer Association, Procter and Gamble is committed to the development of healthy, active kids. This program is a particularly good fit for us because soccer is a great game appealing to both boys and girls. We're very proud to have this opportunity to contribute to the development of Canada's male and female soccer stars of the future."

Canadian Soccer Association is Canada's largest national sport governing body with 585,000 registered players in 1997. Affiliated with both Federation Internationale de Football Association (FIFA) and its North American regional confederation, CONCACAF, as well as the Canadian Olympic Association, the CSA is recognized by the Government of Canada as the official body for the sport in Canada and is thus supported financially by the Department of Heritage. Offering development programs for players of all ages. CSA is committed to gender equity in its programming with 35% of its membership now females. It operates six different national teams at various levels, highlighted by the National Women's Team currently preparing for the qualifying phase in advance of the next world Championship in USA in 1999 as well as the Men's World Cup Team.

Sports Line

Another exciting game with the Didsbury Tiger (U8) Soccer Team was held. The opponents were the Beiseker U8 team and the game was held in Beiseker.

Didsbury led the game 2-0 after the first half.

It was an excellent offensive game by the Tigers. There were some very good recoveries to stop most of the Beiseker rushes.

The kids all had fun and were very good sports. It was an enjoyable game to watch as our home team Tigers won 3-0.

IMPORTANT INSPECTION

Town and school board employees from around the jurisdiction were in Didsbury last week to take a course on the inspection of playgrounds. The group then went outside and practised what they had learned from the guidelines. There were a number of small problems at this playground outside the Memorial Complex, however, Wes Yeoman, town engineer reports that overall it did very well compared to how others have fared in the province.

Da Bulls

Yes the legend lives on. The Chicago Bulls have advanced to their sixth NBA Final in this decade alone. And they once again have a chance to three-peat. This series, especially game seven, was won due to a team effort and great rebounding. It wasn't just Michael Jordan vs. the world. It was Jordan and the Bulls vs. Reggie Miller and the Indiana Pacers. Both Scottie Pippen and Jordan showed remarkable defensive commitments holding Miller to just 22 points in the seventh game, and none in the fourth quarter.

Steve Kerr and Toni Kukoc helped the Bulls by scoring 11 and 21 points respectively.

Together they hit six three-pointers.

Up next is the Utah Jazz, which is a rematch of last year's final. Da Bulls took it in six, denying veterans Karl Malone, John Stockton and Jeff Hornacek a championship. This year the Jazz are stronger and Bulls seem weaker.

But as we all know Michael Jordan can beat any team by himself if he's in that groove. I predict Utah in seven.

Judicial activism usurping parliament

By Myron Thompson

There has been a lot of talk lately about the declining role of parliamentarians at the hands of judicial activism. For example, on a day to day basis we have witnessed the rights or criminals superseding the rights of victims through court imposed conditional sentences.

In the case of Rosenberg vs Canada, a lesbian challenged the constitutionality of the Income Tax Act, since it forced Revenue Canada to refuse to register her employer's private pension plan if it extended death benefits to same-sex partners. In a unanimous decision on April 23, the Ontario Court of Appeal decided to read in a same sex definition of the term spouse into the Act.

I feel that the government has an obligation to defend its stated position on the definition of spouse and if an appeal fails, then this issue should be put before Parliament.

As the former Justice Minister himself said while defending the need for Bill C-33, "we shouldn't rely upon the courts to make public policy in matters of this kind. That's up to the legislators, and we should have the courage to do it."

This issue comes down to one question, is the current justice minister going to let the courts decide on a re-definition of the term spouse or is parliament?
